PASQUALINA SITS SUBBING TWELVE HARD-HEADED MEN FOUND

TO TRY HER FOR MURDER. It Seems That There was a Fend to Italy Retween Her Family and Pierro's-The Pierros Swear Aguinst the Girl.

It took three days and a half in the Court of Over and Terminer to select the twelve jurors who are to decide whether or not Pasqualina Robertiello should be put to death. Pasqualina her lover because he was about to desert. As man after man swore that his sympathy with the young prisoner who will soon be a mother would not permit him to hand in a verdict of "guilty." she sat weeping and wondering what the procession meant. There was one juror to get yesterday morning. After twenty-nine bad toon examined, the thirtieth man was selected as Juror No. 12, and the trial began. The jury are:

Abranam Leipzie, Importer, 478 Brooms street, fore Abraham Leipriz, Importer, 478 Broome street, forman; Stniley M. Dewey, clork, 838 West Twenty-third sobbed. She wore a black dress trimmed with a little slik and looked much order than she is. She is only 19. The court room was crowded with spectators, many of whom were Italians. Among them was Pasqualina's mother, dressed in purple, blue, and red, Pasqualina does not understand much Eng-lish. Mr. Weeks announced, in addressing the Pasqualina does not understand much English. Mr. Weeks announced, in addressing the jury for the people, that in spite of her gentle demeanor and her prepossessing appearance, Pasqualina had committed a cold-blooded and premeditated murder with a revolver which had been bought for that purpose. She had been talso to Nicolo Pierro, her lover, and he had cast her aside. Se she killed him.

Not a word of all this did Pasqualina understand, but as all the eyes of the court room were turned upon,her, her misery overwhelmed her and she fell into a fit of sobbing and crying.

Mr. Weeks called Michael Pierro, a barber of 190 Spring street, Nicolo's cousin. He testified that in company with one of his brothers and a cousin he called on the flobertiellos in January, and asked Pasqualina's father why he had insulted Nicolo. The reply was:

"He has betrayed my daughter."

"I told him," said the witness, "that I would arrange for a marriage, and he said: It he marries her, well and good. If not, I have given my caughter $10 to buy a revolver to shoot him. And Pasqualina broke in with: If he doesn't do his duty, I know what todo." Michael spoke through an interpreter, as did all the Italian witnesses. The Court took a recess for an hour at this point. Pasqualina joined her mother in a corner of the room and they chatted vivaciously. I resently Mrs. Foster, who is connected with charitable institutions in this city, came in and brought Pasqualina and bade her be of good courage. Pasqualina, and bade her be of good courage. Pasqualina, and bade her be of good courage.

and bade her be of good courage. Pasqualina brightened up a little, but, after recess, she began to sob again.

Lawyer Sullivan tried to get Michael Pierro to admit, on cross-examination, that he had told some of the prisoner's friends that he was bound to convict the girl, and that he intended to spend $500 to do it, but the witness denied it. The next witness, Nicolo Pierro, a brother of Michael, testified that he had accompanied his brother to Robertillo's house. His version of what passed agreed with his brother's, save that he swore that the girl said: "I will kill him," instead of "I know what to do."

There was a titter in the court room when this witness said he had talked with nobody about the affair since it happened, not even with his wife. The Judge took notes here, and the jury looked grave. Nicolo lives in the same house with his brother and a lot of cousins, but to none of them, he swore, had he ever uttered a word about the affair.

The next witness was Rosina Baffa, all purple dress, sky-bue ribbons, sparkling black eyes, and olive skin. She used to keep a boarding house at 332 East Hoth street, to which, between Jan. Is and 20. Nicolo Pierro brought Pasqualina. They hired a room, and Pasqualina remained there for three days. Nicolo Rame around at nights. On the third day Mims. Baffa says this happened:

A young man came to see Pasqualina. I told him to go straight up to her room, where he would find her. After two or three hours I made up my mind to see what they were about, so I went up stairs. The door of her room was locked, but she called out that they would be right down. Ten minutes afterward they came down stairs and the young man wont away. When Nicolo Pierro came that night I told him all, and said that I didn't want the girl in the house any longer. He remonstrated with her, and she replied: If you don't marry me you will have to suffer the same death that your father gave to my cousin.

Several of the witherses said that there had been ill feeling between the Pierro and Rober-with her, and the same death that your father gave to my cousin."

Several of the witnesses said that there had been ill feeling between the Pierro and Robertiello families for more than a generation, but the Judge would not allow any questioning on this score. It is said that Nicolo's father killed a Robertiello in Italy many years ago.

Lawyer Sullivan, in cross-questioning Rosina Baffa, asked her whether she was really married. The interpreter conveved the question to the witness in as delicate Italian as he knew, A look of horror and indignation spread over Mrs, Baffa's countenance, as she leaned forward and snapped out, something that sounded like quantitely? The interpreter translated. "Who says so?"

Coroner Hanly swore to Pierro's anterasied him at the time whether he had given Pasqualina the pistol. He shook his head, hesitated a moment, and said 'no,'" Giuseppe Pierre, a brother of Nicolo, swore that Pasqualina's father had told him that he had given his daughter $10 to buy a revolver to shoot Nicolo, Pierro referred to the animosity between the two families, and said that his mother would never allow any of her sons to marry a Robertiello. This witness testified that he had frequently discussed the shooting affair with his cousin Nicolo-the Nicolo who swore he had never spoken to a soul about it. The case was adjourned until 11 o'clock this morning. Pasqualina was crying when they took her away to the Tombs.

To Annut the Charter of the Live Stock Insurance Company.

ALBANY, May 21.-The Attorney-General is to bring proceedings against the New York Mutual Live Stock Insurance Company of New York city to annul its charter. The case is to be based on the report made to him to-day by Superintendent Pierce of the Insurance Department, who upon examination of the company's transactions and conditions find that it was incorporated under false representations aworn to be two of its incorporators. Superintendent Pierce also finds, that the members of the association, askie from the corporators have no voice in the management of the company's affairs, that a majority of the persons forming the corporation are not insured in the company and do not hold its policies, that the moneys received from members for the payment of death losses have not been applied to that purpose, nor are they now in possession of the company—in other words, that there is a deficiency in the mortuary fund, that the assessment notices do not contain the information required by law, and that death losses long past due remain unpaid. The company is therefore conducting a fraudulent business in defiance of the law, and it is proposed, in the interest of the people, to wind up its affairs at once. it was incorporated under false representa-

Her Two Lovers Pought and She Took a

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., May 21 .- Sadie Taylor. a belle of South Farms, is embarrassed by two lovers. One is Owen Honry, a French-man, just Sadie's age, 20 years; the other is William Harrington, aged 40, and su-perintendent of a mill. Strange as it mayieeem, Sadie prefers Harrington to the dashing Frenchman. While her mother the dashing Frenchman. While her mother was away resterday both lovers called at the same time, and both wanted to take her out to ride. Bhe had no atternative and had to decide between them. Young and ardent Henry and sturdy William stood awaiting her answer. Sadie cast her lot with the elder man, who yous the mill and has the ducats. Henry, in his desperation, struck her with his whip. The rivals had had fights before, but nothing to what occurred when Harrington seized the Frenchman who had struck the girl. When Badie saw the two lovers fighting and realized that she was the cause, she was so overcome with sorrow that she ran into the house and took a dose of morphine. Fortunately, the amount of poison was not sufficient to kill her.

The Last of the Newburgh Bridge Bundits

NEWBURGH, May 21.—The last of the notorious gang known as the Bridge Bandits has been captured at Stormville. Dutchess county. by the police of Poughkeepsie. Five of the by the police of Poughkeepsie. Five of the gang are now in Sing Sing prison, and the one just caught. Edward Schirman, known as "Poughkeepsie Dutch," is likely to follow his companions in crime. He is charged with being with Tony Sarvis, who shot Policeman John Levsen, when the latter captured Sarvis, and with John Gleason when the tric fired on Policemen Koch, and Depew last year. "Dutchy lives in Poughkeepsie and has a bar record, having been charged with counterfolling and many other crimes. He is in the Newburgh in all, and will have an examination to corrow morning. YOUNG MR. THATCHER IS INDIGNANT. As Naturally a Newly Married Man Would

" Well. I say it's a darn shame to try to put a thing like that on to a man like me."

That is what Walter Thatcher of Bayonne said yesterday about the suit brought against be a handsome girl, although Thatcher would of good figure and features, with black eyes years ago to keep house for her brothers, who live at 92 West Twenty-second street. Last Tuesday she swore cut a warrant for the arrest of Thatcher, charging him with betrayal under promise of marriage. She says he is the father of her child, born last Monday night.

On Saturday, May 9, Thatcher married Miss Jennie Bradford, the daughter of Turner Bradford of 23 West Twenty-sixth street, Bayonne. in Bayonne of being a hard-working sober young fellow. He is a strapping six-footer with a shrewd, businesslike way. After the mar-Last Wednesday afternoon Policeman John riage he went to live with his father-in-law. Last Wednesday afternoon Policeman John Gore served the warrant of arrest. Thatcher sent for his lather-in-law, and the old man went down to the City Hall and was accepted by Judge Besher as surety for Thatcher in the sum of $600.

Thatcher said he first met Mary Meyers something over a rear ago. He was out rowing with a party one day, and they came un with another boat; in which were Mary Meyers and a girl named dennie Hopkins. There was a jolly illustation and then the crews of the two boats changed round a bit so that the young men and the girls went home fogether instead of in separate boats as they started out. Thatcher lived at the time in Jersey City, he savs, and had for a friend a young man, who got interested in Jennie Hopkins, and went down to Bayonne to see her very frequently. The Hopkins girl and Mary Meyers. Thatcher says, were great friends as d always together. So, in order to oblige his friend. Thatcher used to go down to Bayonne with him and endeavor to keep Mary Meyers interested while his friend entertained Jennie Hopkins. This went, on for about two months, according to Thatcher, when he began to have susnicons that his friend wasn't exactly "playing square," and he made up his mind to quit.

All this time Thatcher was paving some attempt at blackmail. Mr. Bradford says if it is it won't work. "I don't believe that he's guilty at all," he declared, "but if they're looking for money they won't get any out of me. I've worked too hard for my money to fool it away that way. No, sir, we have agreed that if he can't prove his innocence he's got to stand it."

"Oh, I know what they're after." Thatcher said: "I'm on to their game, But they dun't get anything out of me. Oh, no, not while I've get anything out of me. Oh, no, not while I've get anything out of me. Oh, no, not while I've get anything out of me. Oh, no, not while I've get anything out of me. Oh, no, not while I've get anything out of me. Chancellor of the State Board of Regents, in which he gave his reasons for requesting that the school inspectors to be appointed by the Board should be exempt from competitive examination. The Commission appointed by the Board should be exempt from competitive examination. The Commission will insist that, unless better reasons are given, the places be made competitive.

Chief Examiner Reilly was requested to call upon the Secretary of the New York Municipal (ivil Service Board and ascertain if the report be true that he intends to certify twenty credentials as eligible for the position of police station matrons. The Board considers that the municipal rules do not provide for the certification of so many names at one time. The report that offices are appointed on the police force in violations/offithe civil service rules and by improper influence was discussed, and it is probable that an investigation will be taken in hand at the next meeting.

It was voted to grant the request of the Municipal Board of New York for amendments to the New York city rules, so as to make them conform with the rules of the State in these particulars: First, that candidates on the eligible list should only be certified three times instead of five; second, that at the end of the year the eligible list smould expire, and a new one be appointed. year the engine has some an early visit to Bos-one be appointed.

Business Troubles,

Lawyer John W. Alling, on behalf of the Central National Bank of New York, yesterday pre-sented a petition to the Probate Court in New Haven to have Jacob Morris, the clothing dealer at 121 State street, forced into insolvency. On Friday of last week the Morris property was attached by Mr. Morris's daughvency. On Friday of last week the Morris property was attached by Mr. Morris's daughter. Eugenia Mayer Morris of New York, for $40,000, and on Monday another attachment was made by the Bank of North America of New York for $45,500. The attachments are made to secure the noies of Morris held by the New York banks and Fugenia Mayer.

James Snodgrass, commission donler in hay and feed at $82 Hudson street, made an assignment yesterday to Miarcus Kendail, giving a preference for $2,000 to Eliza Snodgrass.

An attachment for $5,820 has been granted by Judge ingraham of the Suprome Court against William Oliohant in favor of W. Watson Martin on the charge of withholding six bonds of the St. Louis and San Francisco Raitrond Company, berrowed on Jan. 31, to be returned in thirty days. Mr. Oliphant is an inventor and Vice-President of the Hege man-Oliphant Filter Company, On May's an attachment was issued against Mr. Oliphant for $5,000 in favor of George E. Conkling.

Judge Ingraham has appointed Henry Winthrop Gray receiver for Lavy Bros. & Co., the failed clothing manufacturer, on the application of Blumenstiel & Hirsh, counsel for several creditors. There are now two receivers, one having been appointed by Judge Fratt, in Brooklyn. on wedneeday. The plaintiff in that action being an uncle of Moses G. Levy's wife. Freceedings will probably be taken to annul the order of the Brooklyn Court on the ground of collusion and concealment of facts.

THURSDAY, May 21. Rumors of heavy shipments of specie on Saturiny changed the course of the market again to-day, Yesterday's rally did not extend beyoud the opening, and the remainder of the day the course of prices was sluggishly downward. There were exceptions, however, heading was not only unusually active, but also very strong, and closed a little higher than yesterday, circumstances that were accounted for by the contract which the company has made with Messis. Coxe Brothers & Co. to handle the product of the firm, which has heretofore been brought of Lackawanna which left that stock 1% ? cent. lower than yesterday. That was the greatest loss recorded. A number of the cent. lower than yesterday. That was the greatest loss recorded. A number of the specialities were consplouously strong, notably the National Cordage stocks, the Wheeling and Lake Erie stocks, and Great Northern proferred. It is worth noting too, that the bond market was more active and that it was possible to sell, at moderate concessions, certain issues for which there has been no inquiry for many weeks.

The usually active shares were entirely in the hands of professional ejecators, who became very bearish as soon as additional shipments of specie were hinted at. So far the ongagements of specie for Saturday's steamers are $1,00,000 here and $500,000 in Bosion. The news agencies figured, however, that the probable shipments from both centres will foot up $4,000,000. On These sestimates are doubtless based upon hopes or possibly expectations of a good demand for sterling exchange to morrow. Today was, as usual, an off day in that market, the tone of which was weak owing to an absence of demand rather than to the amount of bills offered. Long bills are firmer owing to lower rates of discount in London, but sight drafts and cable transfers are quotably lower. As a matter of fact, current rates for sight sterling are so low that there is no profit in shipping gold even at the price which the Bank of England is paying for gold coin and buillion. $180.000 OF OTHER PEOPLE'S MONEY Missing When Satterlee, Rostwick &

Abram Coddington, assignee for the wrecked insurance brokerage firm of Saterlee, Bostday that certainly $150,000 of premiums and losses collected for clients of the firm had been misappropriated. The firm had at various times attended to fire insurance for the Northern Pacific, the Baltimore and Ohio, and the Erie Railroad Companies, placing risks with the Liverpool, London and Globe, the Lancashire, the Queen the Royal, the Com-The firm announced its insolvency on Tuesday afternoon. It was one of the oldest in the business, and the partners had been considered wealthy. For years they had almost a monopoly of railway insurance, one of the most lucrative branches of the business. The members of the firm were Livingston Satter-lived in good style on Staten Island, near Clifton), and Charles B. Bostwick of 48 West Fitty-seventh street.

Mr. Coddington said yesterday that he didn't know the whereabouts of Mr. Satterlee or Mr. Martin. Mr. Bostwick was at the offices yesterday and protested that he was ruined. Mr. Coddington did not believe that Mr. Bostwick was responsible in any way for the wrong-doing. He said that Mr. Bostwick had given up his fine home in West Fitty-seventh street and was now living in a list.

A singular report was current and not authoritatively denied. It was to the effect that certain of the companies or officials with which or whom Mr. Satterlee and Mr. Martin had had dealings had received commissions from the firm in consideration of business lavors. There were also well-defined reports that Mr. Martin had speculated through Lathau Alexander & Co. and H. H. McHarg & Co.

It was further learned that in addition to the firm's dealings with the railroad and insurance companies mentioned, they had had business transactions with R. G. Dun & Co., through Erastus Wiman. Mr. Satterlee and Mr. Martin are neighbors of Mr. Wiman on Staten Island. The firm has been under suspicion in insurance circles since last January. At that time the Northern Pacific Railroad Company received notice that premiums amounting to $80,000 were due. As the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company owed the Northern Pacific $79,000 for losses by fire, the railroad company notified the insurance company that it would adjust the difference.

the insurance company that it would adjust the difference.

The Liverpool and London and Globe replied that it had already paid the losses to Satterlee. Bostwick & Martin. The directors of the Northern Pacific were called together to discuss this curious state of affairs. The brokers were compelled to turn overproperty sufficient to guarantee the railroad company against loss, and then the Northern Pacific and Satterlee. Bostwick & Martin parted company. This was a sharp blow to the business prospects of the insurance brokeringe firm.

It is said that this money was lost in Wall street speculations, and that other moveys received from the Baltimore and Ohio went the same way.

YOUNG MRS. FULLER VINDICATED.

This is the Divorce Case in Which Leices. ter Holme Was Accused by the Husband, The referee's report in the Fuller divorce case has been made to Judge Freedman. It is opinion and voluminous testimony. Among to 10 A. M., June 2, 1801.

By order of the Directors,

ERDINAND MCKEIGE, Treasurer Fuller and Lizzie Hastings Fuller were mar-Foller and Lizzie Hastings Fuller were married on Feb. 21, 1890, the day after she was 17 years old, the groom being 29, and that the couple lived together only until June 21, 1890. And, according to the admission of all the lawyers that the case went against the husband, it is equally safe to say that the final finding is that the wife, the defendant, did not commit adultery with one Leicester Holme at any of the times mentioned in the complaint, or at any time or place whatever. So the findings of law are necessarily that the complaint should be dismissed with costs to the plaintiff. The referee was F. L. Stetson.

The case took a place in the political small talk of the day, because ex-Judge Leicester Holme, who was Mrs. Fuller's legal adviser, was brought in as co-respondent, and by reason of the understanding that this tact was the only cause that prevented the Mayor from appointing him to office recently.

Mrs. Fuller has been in the city awaiting the distributions of the bard of Managers.
